Introduction & Contents

Over the course of this year, we invited IFS colleagues around the world to share insights into their lives, either at work or home, through the medium of photography. This book captures the best of those images, and represent the many different communities where representatives of #TeamPurple live, work and play.

The last photograph, taken using a drone high above the village of Weralughamula in Sri Lanka, is one of the communities where the IFS Foundation conducts its work. We are providing access to clean water, installing sanitation facilities, and investing in healthcare. We are creating employment opportunities, and building school infrastructure. Over time, these investments will enable a sustainable, autonomous and thriving community.

We are making this book available free of charge. However, we encourage you to make a donation to the IFS Foundation here. On behalf of the IFS Foundation, thank you for your support.
